What stood out

The best Bing days were 14 September and 24 September, with 18 clicks each. 29 September still had 14 clicks. In September, 5.1% of the times Bing showed the site, someone clicked. In August that share was 3.9%.

On Google, 11 of the 13 clicks were from India. The homepage took 10 of them. About 22% of the times the homepage was shown, someone clicked. Districts, Nagpur, and MBBS jobs in Gujarat also earned a click.

AI citations held at a high level: 876 in August and 867 in September. The daily count of pages cited adds up to 109 in August and 203 in September, so more pages were picked up through the month. The biggest day was 6 September, with 180 citations. 30 September closed with 53 citations.

Bing's site list has 183 addresses. 119 came back as live pages. 92 were first found in August or September, and 101 were crawled during September. The age calculator was shown 133 times and clicked 3 times. The homepage was shown 66 times and holds 4 links from other sites: Blogspot (3) and kadergp.org (1).

Website and social

1,116 people used the website. 1,074 were new. Average time on site was about 2 minutes. September had fewer brand-new visitors (444, after 630 in August) and many more people coming back (217, after 58 in August).

Facebook had 1,778 views from 38 posts. Instagram had 32 posts and 541 views. The next gain is to put the website link on those posts so the views can become visits.

Keep this going

- Keep publishing on the pages already being shown: jobs, districts, the age calculator, and the eligibility checker.

- Put the new articles live and link each one to the matching jobs page.
- Add the website link on every Facebook and Instagram post.
- Pull the next export in mid-October. These files stop at 30 September.
